'Building a Successful Homoeopathic Business' Panellists

After working for 25 years as a homoeopath and running the Harbord Homeopathic Clinic all that time, you would think Linlee Jordan would have something amazing to tell you about how to survive as a practitioner in the current climate. The truth is she is just as keen as you are to hear what the business coach has to say because we all need to learn some new tricks given the rapid changes taking place. What she can tell you about will be the straightforward power of collaboration, teamwork and plain persistence.

Shilpa Bhouraskar graduated as a Bachelor of Homoeopathic Medicine and Surgery in 1997 and practised as a homoeopathic GP in India for seven years before moving to Sydney in 2004, where she currently runs her busy practice. Shilpa is a popular teacher, presenter and clinical supervisor. Her lectures, seminars as well as online monthly blogs and video lectures have trained thousands of students across the globe. Shilpa is the author of the ebook series and online academy 'The Quest for Simillimum', which offers tools and techniques in different approaches to help practitioners fill the gap between theory and practice. In addition, Shilpa runs 'The Argentum Mentoring' and is the creator of the homoeopathic software 'HomeoQuest'.

David has been practising and teaching homoeopathy since the 1980s. His model of practice merges interests in the management of chronic disease and family healthcare. He particularly values the importance of therapeutic relationships as an ethical foundation for professional practice.
